FOXBURG BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

1877-8.

FOXBURG is situated on the line of the A. V. R. R., 85 miles above Pittsburgh, near the junction of the Allegheny and Clarion rivers. It is the outlet of the Clarion oil district. From here the greater part of the oil produced in the district is shipped through the various pipe lines. A fine bridge spans the Allegheny at this point. The F., St. P. & C. R. R. has been completed from this point (and is now running) to St. Petersburg.

Richland Township.

This township lies in the western part of Clarion county, the Allegheny river forming the western boundary. Salem township bounds it on the north, and Beaver and Licking townships the east. It has an area of about nine thousand five hundred acres. It lies in the great oil belt of Clarion county, and producing wells dot its surface from one end to the other. Oil producing and farming are the chief occupations of its inhabitants. The Allegheny Valley and the Pittsburgh & Western railroads run through it. Its postoffices are Alum Rock, Foxburg, St. Petersburg and Turkey City, and its population in 1880 was 2,740, and in 1890-1,859.
